BRIGHT DESIGN GROUP ANNOUNCES GRAND OPENING IN WASHINGTON, DC

Residential and Commercial Interior Design Company Maximizes Functionality While Emphasizing Unique Custom Design

WASHINGTON, DC (April 17, 2006) – www.brightdesigndc.com, Bright Design Group announced today that it will serve the Greater Metropolitan Washington, DC area with custom interior design planning for both private homes as well as commercial establishments. The company opens its doors for business with three initial projects in hand collaborating with The Beekman Group headquartered in Pennsylvania and Washington, D.C.

Artist and designer, Jim Bright, brings his unique sense of functional design to the new venture. Working closely with the Washington Design Center, Bright also brings resources from a wide pool of talented artisans and vendors.

Bright Design Group collaborates with each client using a vision a new perspective to create interior spaces of timeless style. The classic foundations of space planning, color selection, and furnishings are all customized to best match a client's personal taste.

Built on the knowledge that a residence and office must be both inviting and practical, all Bright Design Group projects focus on functionality and aesthetic design. "We strive to create interior spaces that are purely practical while integrating the key details and elements of fine living" shares principal Jim Bright.

Bright Design Group was formed by Jim Bright, a successful artist known for unique work on canvas. As a North Carolina native, Jim equates his interior passions were derived from the awareness of textiles and furniture his entire life. His keen eyes for dimensions, scale, placement, and color have also joined his appreciation of art, architecture, and design worldwide. Jim's paintings can be viewed at www.jbrightdesign.com.
